THERMAL INSULATION

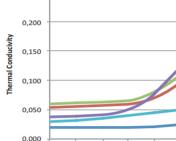

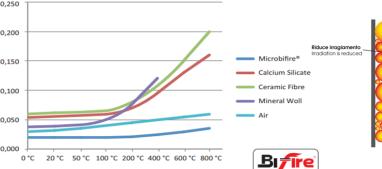

Technology

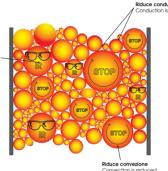

Microbifire is a material derived from nuclear and aerospace technologies. It combines two features dramatically increasing its insulating capacity:

- Microporous Structure: its material is made up of micro-ionized cells from idle material (silicon dioxide). This allows for a strong reduction of energy dispersion caused by the collision among molecules. This in turn translates into a minimum heat transfer thus reducing the radiation of heat through a solid body.
- Radiation Opacity: thanks to the introduction of reflective and absorbent materials (opacifiers) which resist high temperature, this material reduces products radiation transparency, thus reducing heat conduction.

The lower the Thermal Conductivity, the better the insulating capacity of the material

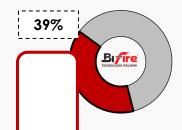

Vacuum allows to deliver best-in-class performances
